SMALL-POX AT CALGARY.

The Calgary Herald, of July 15th, gives an account of the small-pox cases which have occurred in that town. The first case occurred on June 29th in a Chinese laundry. The sick Chinaman and his companions were at once sent out of town and quarantined at Nose Creek. Since going out there another of the party has taken it. On July 2nd a carpenter named Kent took the disease and was sent to the quarantine. On July 14th a man named Pettipiece, who lived two doors west of the laundry where the disease originated, became ill, and he was sent to quarantine. Dr. George has been employed by the town to care for the four cases now existing and to any others that may occur. The town has taken the most active measures by the appointment of health inspectors, using disinfectants, advising vaccination, etc., to prevent the spread of the disease. The mounted police have co-operated heartily. The Herald says it is reported that Vancouver, B. C., where small-pox prevails, is allowing infected people to pass eastward, and advises that passengers from the coast towns be prohibited from landing there.

Forty-two cases of small-pox in Victoria, B. C., and two deaths.

By a recent judicial decision it is settled that purchasers of unpatented lands at land tax sales acquire no interest in the patent when issued.

The Manitoba school case argument, before the Imperial privy council, concluded on July 14th after lasting three days. Judgment reversed.

Blake's majority in South Longford, Ireland, was 2,000. Justin McCarthy, leader of the home rule anti-Parnellites, was defeated in Londonderry.

THE EDMONTON TROUBLE.

Macleod Gazette.

Plenty of evidence could be brought forward to show that it was the intention of the department to remove the Edmonton land and registry offices permanently to the new town across the river; and further, that when such offices were built, they were to be located in the new town. We already know the result of the attempt to remove these offices from the old established town. The people of Edmonton arose en masse, and demonstrated in a very practical manner that they would not submit to any such act of injustice. It even went to the length of their arming themselves to resist the forcible removal of the records by the police, and if the latter had not acted with their characteristic judgment a conflict would inevitably have taken place. It is significant that the entire Northwest applauded the determined action of the Edmonton people. It is indeed a terrible state of affairs when the people of a country must go to the very verge of rebellion before they can secure their rights or induce the government to protect them against the ravages of the speculator. This has been the history of government rule for the Northwest from the earliest times. Where the struggling resident's interests clashed with those of the speculator, the former had to go under, unless he almost went to the length of arming himself and forcibly standing his ground. The Edmonton people did this, and we now find that the land office is to remain there, and that tenders are invited for the erection of land and registry offices in the old town. Will the government ever learn wisdom? Will they ever profit by past experience? Let them remember that they never held out a finger to protect the interests of Macleod, a town site which they own; let them not forget that the time will come when public buildings must be erected, and they must make their choice as they did at Edmonton, and let them, above all, remember that there is just as determined a lot of people in Macleod as there is in Edmonton. By carefully remembering all these things, and acting in time, they may avert a heap of serious trouble.

The Saskatchewan Times declares war on premier Haultain for not having selected an M. L. A. from Saskatchewan to fill the place vacated by Mr. Clinkskill. The Saskatchewan Times overlooks the fact that the reason which made Mr. Clinkskill's resignation necessary made his replacement by any one of at least three of the other Saskatchewan members impossible.

A terrible strike is in progress at the Cœur d'Alene mines. Roads, trucks and bridges have been broken up, wires cut and several non-union men killed by the strikers. United States troops have been brought out to quell the disturbance, and the strikers say they will fight them.

An Ottawa despatch says: Hon. Mr. Dewdney was busily engaged to-day in preparing a report for the erection of court houses, lock ups and land and registry offices in the Northwest. The report will be handed to the public works department to be carried into effect.

The following is said to be an infallible small-pox remedy: "Cream of tartar, 1 oz., dissolved in boiling water, 1 pint, to be drunk when cold at short intervals. It can be taken at any time, and is a preventative as well as a curative."

On July 9th, Smith's stables, Moosomin, were burned to the ground, the fire having been started by a flash of lightning.

Entries to the Winnipeg exhibition close to-day.

DANGER.

It is well for people when danger threatens them to prepare to face that danger and overcome it. There is no doubt that Edmonton, in common with the whole Northwest, is, at the present moment, seriously threatened with a visitation of small-pox; one of the most dreaded and dreadful of diseases. It is our duty in our own interests, and in the interests of the whole country to see that this disease does not get a foothold here, or if it does to see that the measures usually taken in such cases are taken promptly and effectually. There is a natural reluctance on the part of any business community to admit anything or do anything that will interrupt the smooth and prosperous flow of trade; but when a danger threatens, which, if not guarded against, is liable not only to interrupt, but destroy trade, it is good business to submit to the temporary inconvenience and loss of preventive measures rather than suffer the terrible loss and destruction of the danger itself. Terrible although the small-pox is, it is a strictly preventable disease. It can be guarded against completely, as many other epidemics cannot. It is only a question of care, patience, trouble and expense. The BULLETIN has no hesitation in saying that a crisis has been reached in the spread of this disease that renders it imperatively necessary that all possible measures of prevention should be taken forthwith. There is no need of enlarging upon the horrible nature of the disease itself and the destruction to life which it causes, in order to awaken the public to a sense of their duty in the matter; but a word regarding the particular results of its getting a foothold here may not be out of place. This place draws its trade and has communication with the whole Mackenzie basin, including Peace river, a vast region inhabited only by Indians and those who trade with them. An outbreak of the disease here would almost infallibly mean its outbreak throughout the north, where people would be beyond the possibility of help

What would be the horrors of such a visitation can only be thoroughly understood by those who passed through the small-pox plague on the Saskatchewan in 1870, when this country was in almost exactly the same condition as the Mackenzie region is now. To prevent the disease reaching that country is a matter that most closely concerns the Canadian government and should engage their careful attention at once.

Edmonton is in a position of great difficulty at the present time. People are coming in from all directions, although fortunately very few from the coast, and it seems hard to think of doing anything that would tend to turn them back just now, as a quarantine would. But on the other hand should the infection once reach here the difficulty of dealing with it amongst a new and mixed population such as we have, would be very great, and the knowledge that it was here would infallibly deter people from coming; particularly if the north country became infected, when the danger of contagion would remain for years. This is a case in which it is the plain duty of the town council, the local government and the Dominion government to co-operate to absolutely prevent this disease getting a foothold in this part of the country, going even to the extreme of quarantining railway passengers and disinfecting imported goods. There is not a moment to lose. The wonder is that the disease has not already reached; here considering that it has been in existence at Calgary for nearly a month. The fact that it has not is evidence that the Calgary authorities have been vigorous in their action, and that vigorous action is effective. But as the disease spreads on the coast people leave the infected cities, and, as has occurred in Calgary, bring the disease with them. Any train may bring us the infection and it is for us, as sensible people, to follow the example of Winnipeg and take active measures to prevent its doing so; or if it should, be ready beforehand to reduce the danger to the smallest possible point.

The Manitoba crop bulletin reports a light June rainfall, only 2.48 inches. The wheat crop promises to be of the best. Some damaged seed was sown and this is not doing well. There has been some damage from wind. The average price of unimproved land is placed at $8.80, an increase of $2 over last year. The number of farmers in the province has increased from 18,937 to 20,517.

Winnipeg is taking measures against the small-pox. It is proposed to quarantine immigrants on arriving, that an inspection of the city be made, and that a temporary hospital be erected to receive small-pox patients, if there should be any. It is also suggested to quarantine trains coming into the province from the west.

A Miss Black, of Regina, while looking up at some workmen engaged on a building fell backwards into a well twenty feet deep. She was rescued unhurt.

Latest reports are that the "Soo" road will come to Regina.

FIRE PROTECTION.

Fault has often been found with Edmonton, as a town, that it is not compactly built. This is a disadvantage in the transaction of business, which is rapidly being remedied by the concentration of new business buildings in the centre of the town. But it is also an advantage as regards protection from fire. Nearly all the residences of the town are completely isolated, and this is probably the best form of fire protection. But as the business buildings close in on each other it becomes more and more evident that the town cannot afford to do without the best possible means of actively fighting fire. Everyone knows that to fight fire successfully abundance of water is the first necessity. We have an engine that for the purpose for which it was intended, namely, getting to a fire quickly with the object of quenching it at the start, does good work. But when a fire in a wooden town has got good headway, the only thing that can be done is to save buildings not already attacked, and to do this abundance of water and willing hands are necessary. Experience within the past ten days shows that we have plenty of good workers, but also that we have very little water readily available. The BULLETIN believes that there should be underground frost-proof tanks at frequent intervals along the business portion of Jasper avenue, which should be kept filled with water. If plenty of water is readily available, where the buildings are no larger than in Edmonton, a great deal can be done to check the progress of a fire. These tanks would always be useful, no matter how perfect our fire appliances might become. On the other hand, imagine a fire in the business portion of the town a couple of months from now when everything is dry, with a high wind blowing, of what account would the wells be, or the two or three water wagons that would have to go half a mile to get water from the river and draw it up a high hill besides?

Danger of fire is the one great drawback to business in a town. Anything that tends to lessen that danger is a direct benefit to business and to the town.
